Ruth's husband, Mark, has been assigned to the embassy to replace a fellow diplomat who has disappeared under suspicious circumstances in a swimming accident at a beach on the Indian Ocean, a beach so beautiful that it is supposedly the home of the Sea Goddess. Ruth begins to settle into the foreign community but, when the cook she has recently fired for trying to kill her beloved Siamese cat, turns up floating dead in the embassy swimming pool and a colleague tries to seduce her, she begins to understand that life at this post may not be simply a sojourn in exotic tropical surroundings. Nina confesses to her that she has been ordered by the KGB to seduce an American diplomat to compromise him into working for the Soviets. Already in sympathy with the new American feminists who seek to overturn the stuffy misogyny of the foreign service, Ruth, seeing a way to prove that women are as competent as men in diplomatic matters while also aiding Nina, decides to help her. Amid intrigue, seduction, Cold War plotting, and life among lively expatriates in the lush gardens of Java and the temples and courtyards of Bali, the story moves to a dramatic conclusion. Gin Westcott's debut novel is the first in the unique Tangle of Time series that will take you through an exciting, historical, and romantic adventure that you won't be able to put down. 'A writer of fierce and vivid imagination. The Tangle, like Holdstock's classic Mythago Wood and Catlin's The Voorh, taps the deep resonances of the wild wood in the English soul, revering even the stones as living minds, possessed of souls and ancient memories. Visceral stuff from this promising new star of dark fantasy' Michael Moorcock Justin Robertson's debut novel is a trans- dimensional trip into the mysterious knot of nature; a journey into the 'brilliant darkness' where the timeless divine spirit of the 'Tangle' weaves its spell and all mankind's hubris is rendered insignificant by the radically non-human force of phantom ecology. Salvation, revelation and a terrible reckoning dwell in the ancient roots ... A time travelling account of what occurs when unknowable frontiers are breached and humanity finds itself, once again, lost in the woods, THE TANGLE invites us into a grotesque world of eco-horror, echoing with the spirit of writers such as Saki, Ballard, M R James, Ursula Le Guin, Brian Catling and Thomas Ligotti. More than simply coloring regions of a tangle design, this book offers lessons which enable even the novice artist to use a brush pen to color 48 delightful Zentangle animals, plants and flowers.
